DISTRICT 6900 NEWS FOR AUGUST, 2020

From Our District Governor
Join the Check Up On Them Challenge
By Kirk Driskell
While Covid-19 has changed our day-to-day activities, what are you doing to still stay connected? There are many that have not been able to adapt to the change as fast as others. We are all familiar with the most common CDC recommendations on limiting contact, but what about calling your friends?
Dr. Lim, a psychologist says, "Loneliness is about feeling disconnected, even when you have people around you." I have seen many clubs adapt quickly, but that does not mean that all of their members have. Now more than ever it is important to reach out and check on your family, friends and club members. If you have not seen them online or in person lately, give them a call. We never know how much a simple phone call can impact someone.

Thomasville Supports Teen Pregnancy Prevention Program
By Susan Backofen
Five years ago, when Scott Rich was the president of the Rotary Club of Thomasville, Rotarian Andre' Marria approached Rich and the board of directors to ask for their local financial support of a Morehouse College School of Medicine Teenage Pregnancy Prevention Initiative (TPPI).TPPI is a federally funded initiative designed to reduce teen pregnancy rates and to serve approximately 3,450 middle and high school youth over a five-year period in six Georgia Counties.
With the approval of the board, the club committed $3,000 in local funding for the TPPI project. In the next four years, succeeding club presidents and their boards recognized the extreme importance of the project and continued the yearly financial support of the initiative. During the five years of the project, the club has given a total of $15,500. in local support of the TPPI which concluded June 30, 2020. Under the direction of the local Rotary Youth Services committee the Thomasville Rotary Club secured an additional $3500 in local funding through a Rotary District Grant. Total local funding provided TPPI during the life of the grant has been $19,000.

While Covid-19 has changed our day-to-day activities, what are you doing to still stay connected? There are many that have not been able to adapt to the change as fast as others. We are all familiar with the most common CDC recommendations on limiting contact, but what about calling your friends?

Dr. Lim, a psychologist says, "Loneliness is about feeling disconnected, even when you have people around you." I have seen many clubs adapt quickly, but that does not mean that all of their members have. Now more than ever it is important to reach out and check on your family, friends and club members. If you have not seen them online or in person lately, give them a call. We never know how much a simple phone call can impact someone.

I believe that the only way we can keep what we have is to give it away every day. With that being said, I am more focused on the quality of the interactions that I have rather than the quantity. Reach out and give yourself the time to invest in the conversation. Send someone an invitation to a facetime / zoom call to virtually share a cup of coffee or go on a walk together. We can engage and have meaningful conversations even while we are not meeting in person.

A simple phone call letting them know you are thinking about them could save a life! Share with us on social media if you join the challenge.

South DeKalb Presents a Focus on Clean Water Issues … Join On Zoom

Join the Rotary Club of South DeKalb on Zoom on Wednesday, August 12 to hear Rotary Club of South DeKalb environmentalist Dr. Jacqueline Echols talk about the difficulty of solving problems related to the lack of access to clean water. The Rotary Foundation includes water and sanitation as a key focus area. You must be registered to receive the private zoom link. Click here to register: https://events.eventzilla.net/e/rotary-club-of-south-dekalb--2138794966

Jacqueline Echols is a tireless advocate for Georgia's watersheds and works for their protection through both policy change and community engagement. She has served as Board President of the South River Watershed Alliance (SRWA) since 2010. As Board President, she has worked to ensure federal and state regulators enforce DeKalb County's National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) sewer overflow permit, help to secure Georgia Department of Natural Resources grant support for the South River Water Trail, and hosted countless river cleanups; kayaking; and other stewardship and conservation events for the local community.

Jackie Echols' work on behalf of the citizens of this state, most particularly those living in DeKalb County and along the South River has been tireless. For example, DeKalb County sanitary sewer spills have huge negative impacts on the county's streams and rivers. They also cost ratepayers hundreds of thousands of dollars each year in federal and state fines and environmental cleanup costs. Jackie has been more than an advocate for the South River. She is a keen strategist who fights to ensure that federal Clean Water Act requirements are enforced.

Under Dr. Echols' leadership, the SRWA became the sole intervener in the consent decree between the United States Environmental Protection Agency and DeKalb County. The projects and work of SRWA are intended to restore and protect the South River for wildlife to thrive and people to enjoy. Restoration is the return of a degraded ecosystem to a close approximation of its remaining natural potential (U.S. EPA). According to Dr. Echols, urban areas are where most people live and where waterways like the South River are most threatened. Restoration of the South River depends on actively engaging individuals and communities through projects that raise awareness, educate, and connect people to the river.

District Grant Creates Rotary Learning Lab in North Fulton

HomeStretch is a non-profit that helps families with school age children who are employed with transitional housing. As part of the program they help residents with job skills and their children with tutoring so they can be successful in school.

The Rotary Club of Roswell partnered with the Rotary Clubs of North Fulton and Milton on a grant that will provide HomeStretch with an onsite computer lab that children will use with their tutors to complete school assignments and further their education. Currently, students have to travel to another site to receive tutoring. As you can imagine, with working parents and limited resources this is often difficult. Do to child safety and regulations tutors are not allowed in the residences at HomeStretch.

The Rotary Learning Lab will provide a common area for tutors to meet with students and provide the much needed leg up they need to get ahead in life. Once installed the shipping container will be transformed into the Rotary Learning Lab and painted Rotary blue. In addition to providing a great assist to HomeStretch this project will be a lasting symbol of Rotary's great work in our community as everyone who visits the lab will see the Rotary Learning Lab branding.

Between our club members and their connections to the trades we have volunteers who are excited to contribute to this project. Millard Architects, WS Nielsen Company, Choate Construction, Moncrief HVAC, Meer Electic, Kee Designs, Civil Logistics, Lummus Building Supply and more have donated their products or services to this project. These partners have allowed us to turn a $10,000 District Grant into a $100,000+ project.

CLUB INNOVATION:

The club is designed to offer a seamless transition for young professionals who want to advance their careers and their Rotary lives. Focused on networking and mentorship, the club partners with other philanthropic organizations for volunteering opportunities, easing some of the organizational responsibilities of club members.

SPANNING THE AGES:

Atlanta-area Rotarians have a long-standing focus on youth. Their robust RYLA infrastructure [illegible] student leadership program for intermediate [illegible] efforts. Looking to the future, the National [illegible] gave rise to the nascent Rotary Club of Atlanta Metro.

Despite playing an active role as a past president of the Rotaract Club of Atlanta, Alisha Rodriguez assumed that her demanding job would preclude joining a Rotary club. Rodriguez had heard that a lot of Rotary clubs required a large time commitment and that new members often "would get thrown into committees and get overworked," she says.

To David Gordon and Warren Turner, then members of the Rotary Club of Dunwoody with long involvement in guiding the Rotaractors, Rodriguez's apprehensions were familiar. So Gordon and Turner took action, enlisting Rodriguez and others to charter the new club. "Some of them came from Rotaract and some were friends of Rotaractors," says Turner. "We circled back with Rotarians from our club who had left. They found this type of model more accommodating and appealing."

To make the service and club commitments manageable, the club emphasizes volunteer partnerships. "We have structured volunteer opportunities by building relationships with other organizations," rather than inaugurating projects from scratch, says Rodriguez.

"The only charity we encourage members to support financially is The Rotary Foundation," says Gordon. "We support other charities with manpower, intellectual as well as physical." The club works with some of those charities in conjunction with the Rotaract club and other Rotary clubs.

An informal mentoring system is in its infancy, but Gordon already has seen strong bonds forged. "We've just started it, pairing people slowly but surely," he says. The older members also learn from the younger members, Turner says. "The younger [illegible] much more comfortable with emerging [illegible] doubly prefer email. They prefer Slack."

[illegible] balance between the young members [illegible]," says Gordon. As a smaller club, it has [illegible] that sometimes develop within larger clubs, Turner notes. "A trap that a lot of Rotary clubs come across is you tend to bond with the same group of people," he says. "Here, because we're a smaller club, you're forced to talk to everybody. It's about having a conversation, listening to what's important to people."

The club meets twice a month but has sometimes replaced a regular meeting with a fellowship session at different locations, such as an upscale pub with bowling. The club has often held social events at a hotel that, despite its location in Atlanta's trendy Buckhead area, charged the club only $100 for its event space. And a joint meeting with the Atlanta Rotaract club is held every two months.

From top: Club members volunteer at the Adult Disability Medical Healthcare 5K/1K Run; with the Rotaract Club of Atlanta, the club co-hosted an event with Georgia Supreme Court Chief Justice Harold Melton (right).

"It's a less formal club and people really enjoy it. It's a group of friends and we try to keep it that way," says Gordon. "We're spending a lot of time making sure that our members are happy and that they want to join in."

Moultrie Promotes Literacy Through Little Free Libraries

The Rotary Club of Moultrie launched its “Little Free Library” initiative this summer and just recently placed two libraries in town - the first inside of Main Street Park and the second in front of City Hall. Each library is a book-sharing box where people of all ages can come to take a book or leave a book, and the focus is promoting literacy and encouraging more people to read.

The libraries are actually repurposed newspaper boxes donated by the local paper, the Moultrie Observer, and spruced up with fresh paint and graphics. They have been very popular with the community and have seen a lot of traffic in the first few weeks. Requests are in for more libraries across the town and county, so this is a project that will hopefully continue for quite a while.

Lake Spivey/Clayton County Brags on Its Rotarian of the Year

The Rotary Club of Lake Spivey/Clayton County celebrates the selection of Lata Chinnan as its Rotarian of the Year Award for 2019 - 2020. In her role as a dedicated club member and the club's Foundation Director, Rotarian Lata consistently supported all club projects and initiated important projects. An example would be the project she started this spring with a $10,000 matching grant to provide COVID-19 supplies to local hospitals and 11 other Clayton County community service organizations. This project succeeded in providing much needed gloves, masks, and sanitizer for these critically important organizations.

A dedicated Rotarian, Lata lives the idea of the Club functioning like a family in which its members provide mutual support to each other and a strong sense of giving to the larger community. She demonstrates the values of the Four-Way Test daily. In her role as Club Foundation Director Rotarian Lata also is happy to acknowledge that her club members have demonstrated commitment to the values of Rotary by being Paul Harris Fellows. The accompanying photo catches the moment at this year's induction event just after Lake Spivey/Clayton County Rotary Club President Troy Hodges presented the Rotarian of the Year award to Rotarian Lata. Sharing the event with Lata is last year's award winner, Rotarian Tom Mertl.

Americus Awards Lifelong Learning Grant to Local Law Enforcement Professional

The Rotary Club of Americus recently recognized Maqueisha Smith, Communications Officer with the Sumter County Sheriff's Office with a Rotary District 6900 Lifelong Learning Grant

"Thanks to the generosity of Rotary Clubs within District 6900, there were ten awards made available to recipients who would benefit from financial aid to enroll in programs to advance their careers," stated club president Angela Smith.

Rotarians were able to nominate current educators (including teachers and administrative personnel) or first responders, including firefighters, law enforcement professionals, and emergency medical technicians.

Officer Marqueisha Smith was nominated by Colonel Eric Bryant, Chief Deputy Sheriff and a Rotarian, who applauded her for her desire to advance her knowledge and career to serve both her family and community. "She is a dedicated employee who continues to work toward her degree even though she has a full plate as a mother and Senior Training Dispatcher," said Colonel Bryant.

Officer Smith is currently pursuing an Associates Degree in Criminal Justice and was awarded $500 to assist with her education. Angela Smith, President of the Rotary Club of Americus, presented her with the check at the July 14 Rotary Club meeting and congratulated her for her commitment to and pursuit of lifelong learning.

“This has lightened my financial burden and allows me to focus more on the most important aspect of school – learning,” exclaimed Officer Smith. “Rotary’s generosity has inspired me to, in return, one day help other students achieve their goals.”

Offering Support in a Back Pack

For the 12th year in a row, the Alpharetta Rotary Club stuffed backpacks for kids. Each pack is loaded with paper, pens, binders, and calculators. Over 50 backpacks were delivered to North Fulton Community Charities for distribution to children who need supplies for the school year.

The Milton Rotary Club also joined in the backpack party; Club President Susan Cammack posted a picture of herself shopping with this message, “Supporting NFCC Back to School Backpack Drive. Even though we don’t know how long we will be virtually learning at least the kids can be organized at home and feel ready!”

Carrollton Clubs Make a Difference in Their Community

The Rotary Club of Carrollton closed out the year by supporting six local nonprofits that epitomize Rotary's "Service Above Self" motto: THS Emergency Shelter, Carroll County Mental Health Advocates, Friends of the Neva Lomason Memorial Library, Carroll County Training Center, the Blake House, and Carroll County Council on Aging. The club proudly donated $15,000 to their exceptional work in our community!

Across town, each year the current President of the Carrollton Dawnbreakers Rotary Club is given the honor of choosing the beneficiary of our Dawnbreaker Dash 5k/10k. President Ben Lambert chose Partners Advancing Student Success (PASS) for the 2020 Dash! PASS is a nonprofit organization that focuses on improving student success by providing support and services to students with the goal of increasing graduation rates and keeping students on track to finish high school.

Thomasville Supports Teen Pregnancy Prevention Program

Five years ago, when Scott Rich was the president of the Rotary Club of Thomasville, Rotarian Andre' Marria approached Rich and the board of directors to ask for their local financial support of a Morehouse College School of Medicine Teenage Pregnancy Prevention Initiative (TPPI).TPPI is a federally funded initiative designed to reduce teen pregnancy rates and to serve approximately 3,450 middle and high school youth over a five-year period in six Georgia Counties. Thomas and Grady counties were two of the counties served. TPPI strives to:

- Reduce teenage pregnancy and births
- Reduce sexually transmitted infections among adolescents
- Implement selected evidence-based curricula with fidelity
- Increase student bonding to school and academic performance
- Increase Community Awareness of Teen Pregnancy Prevention and Positive Youth Development Programs

With the approval of the board, the club committed $3,000 in local funding for the TPPI project. In the next four years, succeeding club presidents and their boards recognized the extreme importance of the project and continued the yearly financial support of the initiative. During the five years of the project, the club has given a total of $15,500. in local support of the TPPI which concluded June 30, 2020. Under the direction of the local Rotary Youth Services committee the Thomasville Rotary Club secured an additional $3500 in local funding through a Rotary District Grant. Total local funding provided TPPI during the life of the grant has been $19,000.

During that five years, 7,500 teens were served by the program. Of the 7,500 teens served, no pregnancies were reported and five of the teens began their college careers. T

Nationally the grant is funded through the Federal Department of Health and Human Services and administered through the federal Office of Adolescent Health. The grant was awarded locally to the Margaret Neel Williams Boys and Girls Club with responsibility of reporting to a local Fidelity Manager on behalf of Morehouse.

A unique outcome of the grant was the formation of the MNWBGC Youth Leadership Council. The grant required the YLC be formed from graduates of the TPPI. Teens could not be a member of the YLC unless they had completed one of three Abstinence or HIV curriculums taught by TPPI.

The overall design of the program encompasses teen education encouraging personal responsibility regarding the actions and health of teenagers.

Currently, the grant is in a period of 'Sustainability.' The Rotary Club of Thomasville will continue to financially support the program in 2020-2021.
